The forthcoming 20th World Wind Energy Conference & Exhibition will become the first international wind energy event of its kind after this challenging pandemic period. Leading experts from around the world are expected to attend WWEC2022, amongst them top wind and renewable energy experts from all over the world – from governments, industry, science, and international organizations.

We want to re-start with new energy and with the spirit of collaboration that has always characterized ours.

We are therefore organizing the twentieth edition of World Wind Energy Conference in Rimini - Italy, with an in-person conference that aims to be the restart of every activity. By joining hands with various stakeholders, the conference will offer a rich opportunity to communicate to decision makers, project developers, businesses, researchers and financers the significant technological advances and commercial successes of wind power technologies.
